Abortion protesters picket River City High School

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

Last Friday, at the beginning of the school day, between ten and twelve members of a group calling itself Sanctity of Human Life Network (SOHLNET) staged a graphic anti-abortion protest in front of the River City High School campus.

As 1500 unsuspecting West Sacramento high school students arrived to attend classes, the protestors held up large placards with numerous color photographs of dead fetuses and also passed out anti-abortion literature which had been printed by Operation Rescue, a Dallas, Texas based pro-life organization.

"Today's demonstration is a proclamation by Christian people that abortion is an act of violence that kills the unborn child," said Bud Reeves, the president of SOHLNET. "Kids in school don't get to see what really happens when a child is aborted. The photographs we're holding up today are the reality of abortion and SOHLNET has been actively trying to get that message out into the Sacramento area for the past four years."

West Sacramento police officers, who had no prior knowledge that there would be an anti-abortion demonstration at the high school, quickly arrived on the scene and kept traffic moving and made sure the protest remained as orderly as possible. Although the protestors set up their demonstration in an area in front of the school which is usually reserved for parents dropping off their children, the disruption was minor and only a few students ended up being late for their first period class.

"Everyone has a right to express themselves freely," said Jose Rodriguez, River City High School's Interim Principal, "but unlike previous groups who have demonstrated in front of the high school for one reason or another, this particular group refused to move across the street so our students could safely arrive for school. This is the first week of classes, which is always a stressful time for our students anyway, especially for our incoming freshmen, and I think it's very unfortunate that this group chose this particular time and this campus to try and get their point across."

"We've heard from a number of concerned parents," said Cindy Moody-Perkins, RCHS Interim Assistant Principal, "and a few of them were understandably upset, but I was very pleased that our students acted very responsibly and with the exception of some interesting hallway and classroom discussions, everything seemed to get back to normal pretty quickly."

River City students, most of whom are between the ages of 13 and 17, were definitely surprised to find such a graphic anti-abortion protest being staged in front of their high school.

"I think it's really wrong that high school students have to see such terrible pictures," said Marilyn Russell, a junior at RCHS. "Most of the kids on this campus are underage and what those demonstrators really needed to do was to take up their problem with other adults. We don't need that kind of thing at our school."

Brandi Combs, who is also a junior at RCHS said, "It's just not right to try and influence other people by holding up pictures of dead babies. It's okay for them to believe what they do, that's their choice, but don't try to push it on others."

Hubbis Fabian, a senior at River City said, "I'm personally against abortion except in very extreme cases and although the pictures were hard to look at, I guess that was the demonstrators way of trying to show people what a terrible thing abortion is."

Keysic Calvillo, a sophomore at RCHS said, "I think the demonstrators got it wrong. They should have just been holding up signs that said `Don't have sex!'"

"I just hope that the next time they show up, they have a bunch of adoption posters with them," said RCHS economics and history teacher Ronica Carlisle. "I'm all for having babies, just as long as the parents are encouraged to take proper care of them or give them up to loving families for adoption."

Dr. Dennis Kelleher, Washington Unified School District Superintendent of Schools said that to his knowledge there has never been an organized anti-abortion demonstration at a WUSD campus before.

"There certainly hasn't been one since I've been here," said Kelleher. "We're not sure where they came from or if they will be back, but our site administrators, the police and our students all handled a difficult situation very well."

Suspected shooter at large

Police are still searching for Manuel Jose Trujillo, 20, the suspect in the killing of an 18-year old man and the wounding of an 18-year old girl and 15-year old boy in a Fairway Dr. shooting on Aug. 26. The shooting was believed gang-related.

Trujillo is described as 5' 6" tall, 160 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. He has a "BRK" tattoo over his right eye, a "IV" tattoo over his left eye and a teardrop tattoo under his left eye.

Anyone with information is asked to call Detective Ray Bombardier at 372-2461 ext. 248, or police dispatch, 375-6474.

Suspected getaway driver Ramiro Azevedo, 19, was arrested several hours after the shooting.

Locals working bring Yolo Co. history alive for students

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

As part of the state's Sesquicentennical Celebration, celebrating 150 years of California history, a Yolo County committee has come up with Yolo County local history projects for all county third, fourth and fifth graders. But the project needs help from the public to be produced and distributed.

"We're hoping to find some corporate sponsors or someone to do the printing," said Jeri Wingfield, a West Sacramento resident and retired teacher who is part of the committee. "It isn't going to be expensive, but the committee doesn't have any money."

Wingfield's part of the project is an activities workshop made up for third graders. The booklet features cartoons, illustrations, word games and other projects for third graders. Designed around the history of Yolo County and its settlement following the Gold Rush, students learn such nuggets as the fact that the county is named after the Indian word "yoloy," a name for the tule plants.

The booklet will cost about 15 cents apiece to produce for every Yolo County third grader.

"The text emphasizes how Yolo County really developed because of the river," she said.

JERI WINGFIELD

'The settlers took a lesson from the Indians and used tule boats. . .'

"It tells about the way people came to West Sacramento by paddleboat. As they came upstream, there were huge sandbars and the big boats couldn't go past them. The settlers took a lesson from the Indians and used tule boats, made from tules. I found out later that the sandbars were actually created from the placer mining upstream."

All this is outlined in words and in friendly cartoons for third graders to learn from.

Projects for the county's fourth and fifth graders include other kinds of local history projects, including writing projects and art projects.

Anyone interested in helping the history project may call Wingfield at 371-7678.

A Calling

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

West Sacramento residents John and Gaytha Seay recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. They were married in Roswell, New Mexico shortly before the outbreak of World War Two and moved to this area in the early 1960s.

John is a semi-retired Baptist minister and he has started several churches throughout California, including ones in San Diego, Dixon, Grass Valley, and South Sacramento. He also is responsible for the creation of West Sacramento's Anna Street Baptist Church.

"I've always enjoyed being a minister," said John, who has also pastored another half-dozen churches in addition to the ones mentioned above. "There's just no better feeling than helping people along life's way."

John didn't start out to be a preacher. His early years were spent in West Texas farming crops like corn, hay, and cotton.

"It was called diversified farming," explained John, "and it was a good life. But when God calls you to preach his word, you go, and one day I was called right out of a cotton field. It was definitely the right decision for me and I've always been glad I made it."

John met Gaytha in 1938 and they were married a year later.

"We went to the same school and we had a lot of things in common," recalled Gaytha, "and we also both enjoyed church work. At first, I was a little concerned about all the responsibilities that went along with being a good preacher's wife, but things have worked out just the way they were supposed to."

"Gaytha has been an important part of everything I've been able to accomplish," said John.

GAYTHA and JOHN SEAY

"In addition to being my companion for life, she has also taught Sunday School, been in charge of Vacation Bible School, worked in the Women's Mission Society, and also found time to do a very good job of raising our five children."

In preparation for his chosen profession, John studied for two years at Baylor and Eastern New Mexico University.

"I've always been one for staying up with the times," explained John. "The teachings of the Bible never change, but I feel it's important for ministers and churches to do everything they can to make God's word easily understandable to each new generation." John, who is 86, and Gaytha, who is 84, say that forgiveness is not only one of the most important factors in living the life of a good Christian, but it is also the key to having a long and happy marriage.

"We clean the slates every evening," said Gaytha, "and we never allow a problem or a disagreement to carry over to the next day. One of John's favorite sayings is `Yesterday's troubles are not today's, and today's are not tomorrow's'".

John and Gaytha are both in good health and believe that their life together has definitely been a blessed one.

"When you're spreading the good news of the gospel," said John, "it's easy to keep going and never give up. There are always souls to be saved and good work to be done."

When they have some spare time, John and Gaytha both enjoy traveling. They have been back to Texas on numerous occasions and have spent vacation time in most of the Western States. John is also a volunteer bible teacher for West Sacramento Parks & Community Services and he and Gaytha are active in the West Sacramento Senior Center. They have five children; Coral, Gaynetha, Thomas, Sylva, and John Sidney. They also have 18 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren.

The Anna Street Baptist Church is located at 1400 Anna Street. Worship services are at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.; bible study is at 10 a.m. on Sundays; and prayer and Bible studies are also held on Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m.. Anyone wishing to learn more about Anna Street Baptist Church may call Rev. Norman Pollitt at 371-6560.

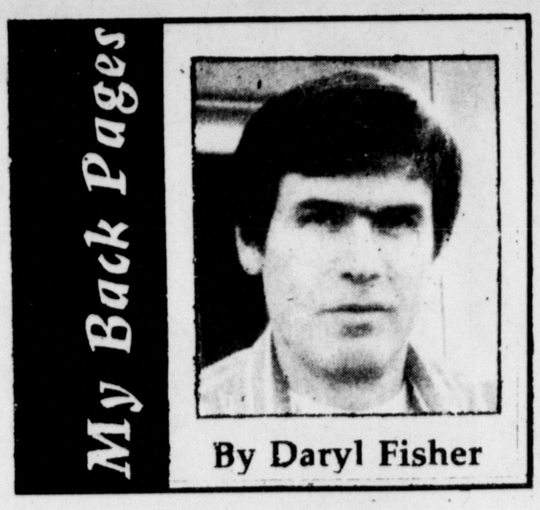
Remembering gifted humor columnist Erma Bombeck



A long-time friend of mine recently dropped by the News-Ledger to show me an old, cutout Erma Bombeck newspaper column she had apparently come across many years ago. The paper it was written on was yellow and crumpled and had obviously seen better days.

"Why do you want me to read this old thing?" I asked as she handed the newspaper clipping to me.

"Because I think just about every parent in West Sacramento -- especially the mothers -- would really enjoy reading it, and I think you should put it in that column of yours."

"But I can't do that," I said.

"Why not?"

"Because it was written by Erma Bombeck, not me."

"But she's dead. She's not going to care."

"I know that," I explained, "but Ms. Bombeck's newspaper columns still belong to her and her heirs and it would be illegal for me use any of her words without the permission of her estate, and I have no idea how to get in contact with it."

"That's pretty silly."

"I know, but it's the law."

"Here, give me that thing," she said, taking the old Erma Bombeck newspaper column back from me.

"Sorry," I said.

"Then how about if you just use some of the important parts and say you wrote it?" she suggested.

"Nope, I'm afraid I can't do that, either. That would be plagiarism."

"Like these parts for instance," she continued, slowly and clearly reading from the article. 'The co-existence of parents with their grown children on this planet has never ceased to amaze me. We literally live in different worlds, with one generation barreling down the information highway while the parents are still at a dead stop at the freeway entrance, afraid to merge.

'Every time our yuppie son visits, I get the feeling he is making plans to put us in a home for the technologically pathetic.

'It occurred to me how different his life is from mine. Letter writing has been replaced by fax messages. Counting on fingers is obsolete, thanks to calculators, and all those years I patiently taught him to tell time was for naught. He just pushes a button and his watch lights up the time in Tokyo.

'His garage door is automatic. His car talks back to him. If he can't spell, the machine will correct it. He shops and orders lunch by computer. He doesn't even have to dial my phone number. He just pushes a button.

'I was beginning to feel like a dinosaur who didn't fit in the world out there. Then one morning I opened the dryer. With all his technology, he still didn't know how to dry clothes. He had pushed the "no heat" button for 15 minutes. His clothes had mildewed.

'The odor will keep him humble for awhile.'"

"That's pretty funny stuff, alright," I agreed, returning my friend's smile. "Erma Bombeck was really the very best when it came to writing family-orientated humor articles. I'm a great admirer of hers."

"And you're sure there's no way you can't use any of this in your column?" she asked, pointing to the article she had brought in for me to read.

"I just don't see how I could."

"But it's so relevant, you know, how parents and their kids are on different planets these days when it comes to technology."

"I know."

"Oh, well," she said with a deep sigh, "I guess you can't do what you can't do."

"Sorry."

The NFL season will open for the 49ers as six-point underdogs in Florida against the Jacksonville Jaguars. The once-mighty Niners will be underdogs and have a few problems they need to resolve or this could be a long season for the 49er faithful.

The 49ers finally got another team to take Jim Druckenmiller off their hands. The 49ers will receive a conditional choice in next year's draft for their 1997 first-round pick. If you remember my column back in April of 1997, I had suggested they select quarterback Jake Plummer from Arizona State. Mr. Plummer led the Arizona Cardinals to the playoffs last year. Druckenmiller will probably fit better into Miami's offense than he did with the 49ers' West Coast system.

The Dolphins are happy because they're looking for someone to replace the 38-year old Marino in the next couple of years. The 49ers, who are shopping around for another defense back, are still trying to shore up their defense. Look for Bill Walsh to make another couple of trades before Sunday's kickoff.

The Raiders will have a difficult task this weekend as they open the season as 10-point underdogs in Green Bay. The weather should be pretty good, so let's hope they don't turn the ball over and they keep penalties to a minimum. The Raiders will start Rich Gannon at QB and have Bobby Hoying and Wade Wilson competing for the No. 2 spot. The Raiders' defense may have to carry this team this season, so look for low-scoring games. The Raiders improved their kicking game from last year by signing free agent Michael Husted, who made eight of ten field goal attempts during the pre-season.

Well, it's the NFL 1999-2000 football season, and I love it! Once again, I will entertain my readers with weekly picks. I will select three NFL teams (ncluding the Monday night game) that I think will win their game or cover their spread. The first week, I'll stay away from the 49ers and Raiders, because they don't perform well in season openers on the road.

I think the Seattle Seahawks (-9 1/2) will crush the Detroit Lions (no Barry Sanders) in their season opener at home. Also, I like the Tampa Bay Bucs (-6) to mug the New York Giants in Florida. On Monday night, I like the underdog Miami Dolphins (+7) against the (Elway-less) Denver Broncos. OK, I did it!

The season is going to be great to watch, with no clear-cut teams to win their divisions.

It's open season for the teams that remain healthy and have a bit of the luck of the Irish with them.

The Giants are still hanging on to their slim chance at making the playoffs, but the A's, who trail Boston by three games in the wild card chase, have been very impressive. The A's and Boston will have a two-game shoot-out on Tuesday and Wednesday in Oakland. The A's, who have 24 more games remaining, will hit the road Friday for a four-game series with Tampa Bay, and then stop by Baltimore for three games. The Giants, on the other hand, are down to 23 games that will put them head-to-head with Arizona (Sept. 24, 25 & 26) in San Francisco.

The Giants also have seven games remaining with the archrival Dodgers.

See ya next week!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

When to pass the gavel

West Sacramento, a relatively small city of about 30,000, is run by a citizen-government.

At the top of the decision-making process for the city is a group of five part-time city council makers who receive only a nominal fee (and some benefits) for their service. These five direct the city's paid staff.

The five also, once a year, choose from among their ranks a mayor and vice mayor.

While the vice mayor in West Sacramento gets about as much visibility behind the mayor as a U.S. vice president does behind the president, the mayor is a fairly prominent person. Besides presiding over council meetings and some city functions, the mayor has a few administrative duties -- and serves as a chief contact person for regional media, business and government communities.

These facts create a bit of a local conundrum that the West Sacramento City Council will shortly face. West Sacramento city council members typically tend to have jobs, families and lives outside of their city government involvement, and service on the council takes quite a bit of time. Service as mayor takes even more time because of the increased demands of that post. Most council members who have served as West Sacramento's mayor report that a one-year stint in the position is about enough.

Yet the mayor's position is important to the city's progress within the region -- and therefore continuity in the mayor's position can be an asset for the city. Some people joke that while major cities usually have a long-term mayor who is well known and is identified with these cities (think "Joe Serna," "Willie Brown" or "Jerry Brown"), West Sacramento has something more like a "mayor-of-the-month" club. When outsiders from other regional governments and the media need to talk to a West Sacramento spokesman, they often first have to find out who the mayor is "at the moment."

There is a movement afoot to change this and give West Sacramento a two-year mayor's term. Proponents are chiefly motivated by the progress they believe current mayor Christopher Cabaldon has made, particularly in regional enterprises such as the planned new baseball stadium, and wish to keep him as mayor another year. Cabaldon himself would like another year.

Changing to a two-year term would thus increase the continuity in West Sacramento's leadership, giving it a better chance to build relationships and promote its interests region-wide (early years of the city were spent more on internal planning). It would also lengthen the demands of the mayor's job upon whoever holds the position. And it would end the (usually) gentlemanly rotation of the mayor's position which has been the usual practice of the city council, making it more difficult for the honor to be "equitably" shared by council members, and probably introducing more lobbying and politics into the pursuit of the mayor's gavel.

Though the move would certainly irritate some other members of the council, leaving Cabaldon in the mayor's seat for a second year would be good for the city. But compared to other council members, Cabaldon is probably the exception rather than the rule: he is one of the rare council members who is in a position to serve enthusiastically in the mayor's seat for more than one year.

So perhaps the best decision the council can make is one that leaves the mayor's one-year term intact, but foregoes the "rotation" of the mayor's gavel in favor of a year-by-year decision (with public input) on who should best hold the post. An "exception" like Cabaldon could then be considered for an extended term.

The "rotation" of the honor would disappear. We'd just have to abide the resulting rivalries and politics.

Letters to the Editor

Keep Cabaldon as mayor

What a great idea! Chris Cabaldon is an articulate individual who has excellent leadership ability, vision, great people skills, and he would be a real asset to keep as our Mayor for a longer term than just one year. I know it's a break from tradition not to rotate the Mayor position to the Vice Mayor, but let's face it, this guy is good, and he deserves to keep his job.

I think our city is in a period when we need strong leadership. You don't see cities like Sacramento, San Francisco, or for that matter, Davis or Woodland, changing their Mayor every year and I don't think we should, either. We should not underestimate the power that one person can have on impacting our city's future. Big corporations realize the importance of this and will pay millions to keep the right guy employed. Even stock prices rise and fall depending on who is or isn't in charge of a certain company. In the past, when we have had good, strong leaders in the position of Mayor like Greg Potnick and Bill Kristoff, things just seem to have gone better.

Everyone knows that Joe Serna is the Mayor of Sacramento. Let's take another step up the ladder of cityhood and keep Cabaldon for awhile so people will know who our Mayor is, too.

On a different issue, in response to William Lowell's question regarding using tires to improve our levees: One of the problems with our levees is that they are, for the most part, made from sand (which tends to be a less than ideal material for stopping water). Also, they are home to a variety of burrowing varmints, such as beavers, rats, snakes, etc.. Because of this, engineers are constantly trying to prevent water from seeping through and under our levees. One of the most practical ways of preventing seepage is to construct a leak-proof wall down the center of the levee. They have tried a variety of materials for this purpose, such as steel and plastic sheets, bentonite slurry, concrete, and now the latest idea is ground-up rubber from used tires. Personally, I think this idea is a little farfetched, but it is an idea, and it deserves some consideration.

WUSD plans boundary talks

The school board of the Washington Unified School District has announced the formation of an elementary school boundary task force to be composed of parents, teachers, classified staff and administrators.

The task force will be charged with coming up with recommendations for elementary school attendance boundaries in West Sacramento for presentation to the board in May.

Interested parents should contact their local school principal. Each school site will establish a process to select two parent representatives.

The board will be asked to appoint task force members on Sept. 23.

The power of a Grandma.

Children have a very special relationship with Grandma and Grandpa. That's why grandparents can be such powerful allies in helping keep a kid off drugs.

Grandparents are cool. Relaxed. They're not on the firing line every day. Some days a kid hates his folks. He never hates his grandparents. Grandparents ask direct, point-blank, embarrassing questions parents are too nervous to ask:

"Who's the girl?"

"How come you're doing poorly in history?"

"Why are your eyes always red?"

"Did you go to the doctor? What did he say?"

The same kid who cons his parents is ashamed to lie to Grandma. Without betraying their trust, a loving, understanding grandparent can discuss the danger of drugs openly with the children she adores. And should.

• The average age of first-time drug use among teens is 13. Some kids start at 9.

• Roughly 15% of American kids between 9 and 12 are offered illegal drugs. And 30% of these kids receive the offer from a friend.

• Illegal drugs can be linked to increased violence in many communities, to AIDS, to birth defects, drug-related crime, and homelessness.

As a grandparent, you hold a special place in the hearts and minds of your grandchildren. Share your knowledge, your love, your faith in them. Use your power as an influencer to steer your grandchildren away from drugs.

If you don't have the words, we do. We'll send you information on how to talk to your grandkids about drugs. Just ask for your free copy of "A Parent's Guide to Prevention." Call 1-877-4EDPUBS.

Grandma, Grandpa. Talk to your grandkids. You don't realize the power you have to save them.

FRANK EDSON WILL HAVE OPPONENT FOR SUPERVISOR

Woodland, Feb. 15.—Ed. Clover of Zamora will be a candidate for supervisor from District No. 3 at the November election. The announcement of the candidacy was formally made yesterday. He seeks election in the district now represented by Supervisor Frank B. Edson.

Mr. Clover has particular qualifications for the position and of his honesty and integrity there is no shadow of a doubt. He is a farmer of the district, owning approximately 200 acres. Before devoting all his time to farming operations he was a contractor and had much to do with levee and road building, so has had experience in many of the duties which will devolve on him in the office he seeks. He has lived in the county for the past 34 years and has always taken a keen interest in public affairs and has kept abreast of the times in every forward movement. Mr. Clover's son has arrived at the age where he can take complete care of the family farming interests, thus releasing the father for giving his time to county affairs, of itself a qualification worthy of moment to voters in determining their choice for the office.

YOLO WILL TAKE A HAND IN '49 CELEBRATION

Woodland, Feb. 11.—The Yolo County Board of Trade is making preparation in advance so that the county may take advantage of the big excursions scheduled for Sacramento and San Francisco during the coming spring and summer. It is estimated that 200,000 people will visit the "Days of '49" celebration in Sacramento, and as many more will attend the meetings of the Shriners and the big National Realty convention in San Francisco.

It is not improbable that Yolo county will be represented with a building or booth at Sacramento. The matter is now being negotiated.

"The proposition to take advantage of the coming opportunities was suggested by President R. L. Niemann, of the board of trade at its last meeting," said Secretary Shaffer this morning. "It will afford us an opportunity to visualize Yolo county and its resources to thousands of people. Because of our geographical location our proximity to Sacramento makes it possible for us, by employing the proper spirit, to give trips to many of these visitors.

"Woodland, Esparto, Madison,, Davis, Winters, Knights Landing, Clarksburg, Zamora, Dumigan and every town and city in the county will be asked to organize automobile divisions and see to it that visitors are given an opportunity to see Yolo and know something of its advantages. If we could get 200 owners of automibiles to agree to devote a day to this work showing up some particular section and then see to it that each section did something along the same line we would be accomplishing a wonderful good for the county. We believe the people possess the public spirit to join heartily in this, and the matter will be taken up with every organization in the county."

"ILLEGAL HANGNGS" INQUIRY WAS A FARCICAL BURLESQUE

Washington, Feb. 11.—Investigation by congress of the alleged illegal hangings in the A. E. F. is termed "a farcical burlesque" by the American Legion at Mineral Wells, Tex. "This abortive investigation is an insult to every loyal American," a resolution reads. "We believe it is time members of the board began devoting their efforts to matters of import instead of indulging in the hearing of unsupported and absurd complaints made by a few obviously disgruntled and irresponsible muckrakers."

The American Legion Weekly of February 10 prints an article by an ex-captain in the signal corps, quoting General Bullard's order to shoot "on the spot" any person advising surrender during battle, but flatly denying that evidence of any such instance has been substantiated.

Governor Stephens told the people in Chico the other day that since prohibition became effective there has been no liquor in his house.

ANOTHER SUIT FILED AGAINST THE WEST SACRAMENTO CO.

Woodland, Feb. 13.—The E. Clemens Horst company has filed suit against the West Sacramento company asking for $10,196.84. The complaint charges that the plaintiff purchased some land in West Sacramento with the understanding that a clear title would be delivered.

Following the purchase, it is charged discovery was made that the Land company had included the property in a deed of trust given to the Mercantile Trust company of San Francisco. The plaintiff removed the obligation by paying $10,196.84, which it now wants refunded by the land company.

AGRICULTURAL OUTLOOK GOOD SAYS DEAN HUNT

Davis, Feb. 14. Optimism for the future of the agricultural industry was expressed by T. F. Hunt, Dean of the University of California College of Agriculture, upon his return last Sunday from the National Agricultural conference in Washington. This conference was called by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace at the request of President Harding to discuss the present agricultural crisis. As a result of the conference, plans have been initiated to relieve the present difficulty and to reduce the possibility of a recurrence of similar crises in the future.

While in Washington Dean Hunt appeared before the houce committee on agriculture in support of the Purnell bill, which is designed to increase the Hatch fund appropriation from $15,000 to $100,000.

JOHN GROTE NO LONGER UNDER SUSPICION

Woodland, Feb. 14.—John Grote of Washington, Yolo county, whose citizenship was questioned recently in the Superior Court of Yolo county when he appeared as a witness for Peter Ghelfi of Washington, sought naturalization, stated he had received a letter from United States Naturalization Examiner C. A. Ball, positively establishing his citizenship.

According to law, a witness must be a citizen at naturalization proceedings, and Grote was unable to substantiate his statement that he had been naturalized in San Francisco.

His naturalization papers were destroyed by a fire in Fresno, and the San Francisco court records were destroyed by a fire in 1906.

Ball, in a letter to Grote, states that records in the County Clerk's office at Fresno prove he was naturlized in 1890. The state law at the time Grote registered in Fresno required that he show his naturalization papers, and Ball says the records show he did so.

AMALGAMATED WILL DRILL IN OIL SAND

Williams, Colusa Co., Feb. 14.—According to a report received here today, the drill of the Amalgamated Oil Company at the well a mile from Wilbur Springs had penetrated the hard capping at 2000 feet and had entered an oil sand.

Owing to the water and gas pressure, the amount of oil could not be determined. It will be necessary to cement off the water, and then send down an eight-inch casing into the oil sand strata.

At the Gibson gusher, a few miles from the Amalgamated, the tunnel being driven toward the source of the spring has increased the oil flow one-third. Every available tank and storage reservoir is now full of oil, only half of which is being saved. New settling banks are to be erected at once.

ASSEMBLY CANDIDATE MAKES KNOWN HIS ASPIRATIONS

Woodland, Feb. 15.—Fred B. Noyes, for 12 years sheriff of Sutter county, up to the last election and prior thereto undersheriff for Sheriff J. K. P. Elwell, one of the best known men in Sutter and Yuba counties, yesterday announced he would be a candidate for the assembly to succeed Assemblyman Ed Lewis of Marysville.

Noyes first learned from Lewis that the present incumbent would not seek re-election.

The Eighth district, in which Noyes will run, consists of Yuba, Sutter and Yolo counties. Being a man of large acquaintance and gives promise of being a strong candidate for any aspirant to oppose.

Noyes has been a resident of Sutter county since 1865, and was reared by the late Senator A. L. Chandler, pioneer who lived near Nicolaus and after whom Chandler station was named.

In the last session of the legislature Noyes was a clerk under Assemblyman Lewis and served in that capacity for the committees on drainage, swamp and overflowed lands, insurance, mines and mining and on corporations. These are among the most important committees of the legislature, and through his work there Noyes gained valuable experience that would aid him materially in working for the interests of his district as a member of the assembly.

Noyes was manager of the White House ranch for two years prior to entering politics. He has a high standing in fraternal circles and is well acquainted with the conditions and needs of the Eighth district.

A minister of Oxbow, Canada, was sentenced to nine months hard labor on the rock pile the other day for trying to deceive his wife into thinking him dead.

The rock pile is a good place for a lazy man.

STEAMERS ADRIFT THREATEN BRIDGE AND WHARVES

The river steamers Colusa, Jacinto, San Jose and Valetta, anchored at the shipyards in Washington, were blown loose from their moorings Thursday night, drifted across river to the Sacramento side, and then down stream. The escape of the steamers was discovered by P. Hart and Grant De Riso, as they were returning with their boat, the Josie Lane, which had also loosened from its anchorage. Workmen spent several hours last Friday in the effort to return the steamers to the shipyards.

No material damage was done, because the steamers stood to the wharves on the Sacramento side.

Notice of Petition to Administer Estate of Esther Amaya
Case No. PB99-199

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Esther Amaya:

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Kathleen R. Sylvia, Public Administrator, in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Kathleen R. Sylvia, Public Administrator, be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived consent or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on September 30, 1999, at 8:30 a.m. in Dept. 7 at Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 725 Court Street, Woodland, CA 95695.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the next four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

UCD plans entry to local land/water race

The Sacramento Metro Chamber of Commerce has announced that a team from UC Davis is planning an entry in the Sept. 25 River Otter Amphibious Race ("ROAR") to be held on the riverfront in Sacramento and West Sacramento. The race invites imaginative "kinetic sculptures" for the land/water race.

"We are certain that this year's entry will be not only functional, but educational and fun as well," said Theo Yau, financial officer for the UC Davis engineering team designing the entry. The team (which includes non-engineers as well) has obtained a 13-foot aluminum fishing boat to serve as the "foundation" for its entry, and plans to use four racers and mostly bicycle gearing for power transmission.

The entry could include "Willy Wonka" styling or a giant salmon or cow theme, reports the chamber.

UC Davis joins Sacramento State and the cities of Sacramento and West Sacramento in planning to enter the race. The chamber reports that veteran racers from the Arcata-to-Ferndale Kinetic Sculpture Race will also participate in ROAR.

For information on the event, call 552-6808 ext. 105.

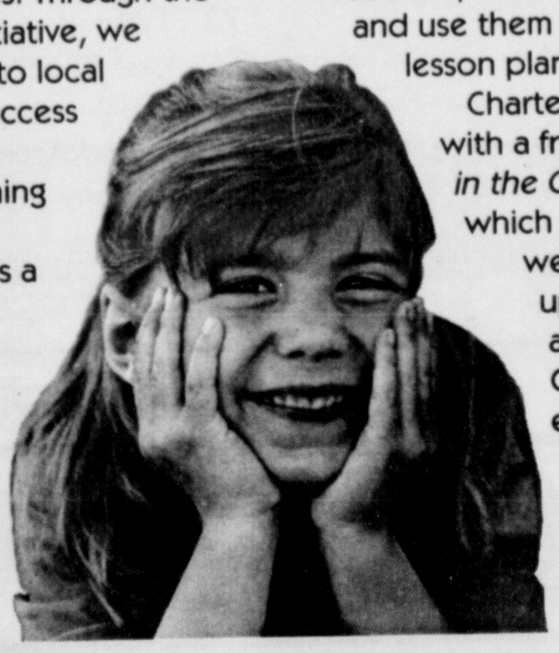
Cable in the Classroom brings learning to life...and life to learning

At Charter Communications, we're opening our children's minds to a while new universe of possibilities. Through the Cable in the Classroom initiative, we provide free cable service to local schools, giving educators access to more than 540 hours of commercial-free programming each month.

Cable in the Classroom is a cooperative effort between national cable networks and local cable operators like Charter. Networks such as Discovery Channel, A&E, C-SPAN and CNN produce and air programs on subjects including history, literature, art, science, current events and more.



Teachers, in turn, tape these programs and use them to supplement their lesson plans on these subjects.

Charter also provides teachers with a free subscription to Cable in the Classroom magazine, which is sent to each school we serve. The magazine lists upcoming programming and features tips on using Cable in the Classroom effectively.

Charter Communications is proud to play an active role in educating our children through Cable in the Classroom.
